

TUITION & FEES

2026-2027

TUITION & FINANCIAL PHILOSOPHY

Since the school’s inception, the Board of Directors decided that 100% of the school’s annual operating expenses be borne by those receiving the value: therefore, tuition and fees require some adjusting each year in order to cover all of the academy’s operating expenses.

Because of the nature of the university-model, the cost of tuition for a full-time student will be less than a typical 5-day-a-week school. However, our desire to attract and retain the very best teachers will be reflected in our tuition as well.

Each student is evaluated on a case-by-case basis in consideration of the best outcomes for the student, the family, and the school. While Providence Academy does not offer any kind of diploma for such students, the student may accumulate course credits at Providence to place towards a self-managed high school plan. Individual classes are $1,500 each and the Study Hall fee for off-periods is $500.
